THE HERALD-REPUBLICAN'S NERVE.

For some time, but only since the election, the Herald-Republican has been telling the people how high the price of coal is. The Standard and Examiner, however, handled the coal barons without gloves before the election, but now comes the Herald-Republican and says the Standard and Examiner are falling in line. To be exact, it says, "Glasman gets in," meaning that we are getting into the Herald-Republican's band wagon.
The facts are the Standard and Examiner had led off in the fight for the "common" people fully a year before the Herald-Republican showed signs of any sanity; in fact, within nine months the Herald-Republican has shamefully abused Ex-President Roosevelt and those who believed in him, and has read the Insurgent Republicans, including the Standard, out of the Republican party for preaching that which the Herald-Republican now espouses. It requires nerve to make such sudden changes, and we congratulate the Herald-Republican on its sudden change, which has been brought about by the overwhelming victory of the insurgent Republican over the "Regulars" in every part of the land. It was the insurgent victory that caused even President Taft to say that "Insurgent Republicans will hereafter be recognized" by him as REAL Republicans.

The foregoing are the facts and it appears to us that it would be the part of decent journalism for the Herald-Republican to recognize the Evening Standard as the pioneer of the Progressive Republican move in Utah and in particular, recognize the fact that the Standard and Examiner were exposing the coal trust when the Herald-Republican was battling with the Hon. B. H. Roberts on the issue as to whom was to be awarded the championship so long held by Ananias.

The Herald-Republican still persists in calling for an investigation by the legislature as to whether the price of coal is too high. Everybody knows that the price is too high. Why have the legislature waste its time in proclaiming what we all know? Everybody knows that there is a combine between the coal companies. Why doubt it? Let the Herald-Republican help the Standard and Examiner urge the legislature to create a public utility commission which shall set the rate on freight and coal, as has been done in other states.

The Herald-Republican says a week or ten days is all the time required by the legislature to investigate the coal situation. The Herald-Republican is dreaming, for each coal company and each railroad company will take more than that much time in presenting evidence, and the attorneys will take twice that much time in trying to fool the legislature.

As to the Herald-Republican's statement that "Glasman is off wrong, as usual," that is for the public to decide. It has so happened however, that every step the said Glasman has taken on this great question has been taken by the Herald-Republican, only the latter sheet always has been about six months to a year behind the Standard.

We hope, however, the Herald-Republican will get in line for the railroad or public utility commission before the usual six months elapses, because we believe, with the help of the Herald-Republican, the legislature can be persuaded to give Utah the railway commission.

AT THE ORPHEUM FRIDAY.

The Children's Aid Society, devoted to the succoring of homeless, vagrant, cruelly treated or poor children, has obtained the Orpheum and its show for next Friday and will receive the proceeds of the matinee and evening performances, less the actual cost of the show for the day.

The cause is so worthy and the opportunity is such a rare one for the giving to a charitable purpose and still receiving full value in amusement, that we venture the prediction that the Orpheum will be crowded afternoon and evening.

The ladies who make up this society are a willing, self-sacrificing bands of workers, and their labor of love should be encouraged by the people of Ogden.

THE TRIBUNE WOULD NOT EXCLUDE US.

The Salt Lake Tribune says, in reply to the Herald-Republican: "The Tribune promptly denounced the raise in the price of coal that was put into effect on November 1. It is the only paper that did so before election, and it has consistently and insistently denounced that raise as unfair and oppressive upon the people." The Smoot paper said not one word about the arbitrary and cruel raise when it was made. It has never said anything in behalf of the people, but only in behalf of its blackmailing scheme and its political jobbery.

We concede that the Tribune denounced the coal raise before the election, but it was not the only paper. The Evening Standard not only opposed the raise, but denounced it. Will the Tribune be fair enough to give us this credit? See our editorials in the Evening Standard before election, wherein full credit was given the Tribune in leading off in the coal fight.

WITH SHEARS AND PASTE

Very Consoling.
Mr. Brown had gone up to the attic and hanged himself. While the sorrow of the widow was keenest, her neighbor, Mrs. Jones, came to comfort her. Mrs. Jones, because of her reputation for always saying the wrong thing, had secured the consent of her own family to make the visit only on her promise that she would talk about subjects foreign to the cause of the friend's grief. She commenced on safe ground by talking about the weather.

"Rather nice weather we've been having," Mrs. Jones said.
"Yes," said Mrs. Brown; "but it has been too wet to get our washing dry."

has been too wet to get our washing dry.
"Oh, well, you needn't worry about that," Mrs. Brown, as you have such a nice attic to hang things in."—Lippincott's.

A Gentle Hint.
Charity workers often feel great awkwardness in making public appeal for funds.

Few of them, declares the Washington Star, can carry off that embarrassment with the grace of the colored preacher who said to his congregation: "Bridern, Ah kain't preach, hyah, an' boad'n Heb'n."

A Mighty Fine Liar.
Blodbs—I never knew such a liar as Blodbs. Yes, that fellow could actually eat an onion and lie out of it. —Philadelphia Record.

Not His Debut.
At a social evening at the home of a local merchant recently, the conversation turned to the subject of "breaks" made in downtown churches where the members of the congregation never became fully acquainted with everybody else. The story was told of a Lowell clergyman who, on one occasion, exhorted his parishioners to be more cordial in greeting strangers in the church. At the close of the service one of the members turned to another member of the congregation and said cordially: "I am glad to see you here this morning, and I hope that you will come again."
"I expect to," was the reply. "I have been coming here for forty years."—Lowell Courier-Citizen.

NEED MORE MONEY TO INSPECT SHEEP

Annual Report Shows That the Last Appropriation Was Inadequate.
The state board of sheep commissioners has filed its annual report with Governor Spry. The commissioners paid $4,500 in the year and have $1,398.40 on hand. Attention is called to the fact that the last appropriation for inspection purposes was inadequate, and that the funds were accordingly used in the districts in which the services of the inspectors were most needed. There is but little scab among the sheep, the report says, but inspections have to be made just the same, and more money is needed for the purpose. In this work the government has rendered valuable aid to the state.

Mention is made that after the United States bureau of animal industry had made an investigation, the government quarantine was released on Washington, Iron, Beaver, Platte, Garfield, Kane and San Juan counties, and it is expected that other portions of the state will be released at an early date. Generally speaking, sheep are in good condition, the report says. The sheep tick has appeared, but it has made little progress, by reason of prompt dipping.

Wool is cheaper than it was last year, the report says. The last winter was a hard one on sheep, and it was followed by a dry summer. Many sold their sheep, and there is now only about 8 per cent of the sheep in the state that there were here a year ago.
An improvement is reported in summer ranges. Free ranges have almost entirely disappeared, and seeding ranges are now being used, and the sheepmen are fencing their lands. This is found advantageous, as almost twice as many sheep can be fed on a fenced range as on a herding range. The commissioners express the belief that there should be a system of grazing on the forest reserves, although in many instances it has worked a hardship on stockmasters and deprived the state of needed revenue.

Regarding the bounty on coyotes, the commissioners say that the proposition is not working satisfactorily. In their opinion, the men who hunt coyotes for the bounty do not desire to kill all of them, as their industry would then be at an end.

BRIGHAM'S HOME DRAMATIC: RAPID TRANSIT OFFICE

Brigham City, Dec. 17.—A home dramatic company has again been formed in this city, with practically all the old members in the cast. The promoters of the company are John E. Baird, local manager of the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company, and C. N. Christensen, formerly of Salt Lake. The company will put on a number of plays in northern Utah. The first one will be presented here about Jan. 1 and will be "The Man of the Hour." The Ogden Rapid Transit company will establish headquarters at this end of the line beginning immediately after the first of January. Superintendent J. W. Bailey was in the city on Thursday afternoon and made arrangements with Christensen & Knudsen to handle the business of the electric road, including express, which the company is preparing to handle after the first of the year. The firm will provide a waiting room in the store.

A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN TACOMA, WASHINGTON

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 17.—Fire of unknown origin totally destroyed McCormack Brothers' big department store early this morning, causing a loss of more than $100,000. The insurance is one-third of that amount. The fire broke out when the fire department was answering two other calls in the city limits.

CONSUMPTION OF TEA.

New York, Dec. 17.—The world's annual consumption of tea 1,250,000,000 pounds, according to figures given out yesterday by a market statistician here. China produces 50 per cent of this total and nearly 40 per cent more comes from British possessions.

A SIMPLE SAFEGUARD FOR MOTHERS.

Mrs. D. Gillespie, 326 Ingles Ave., Youngstown, Ohio, gained wisdom by experience. "My little girl had a severe cold and coughed almost continuously. My sister recommended Foley's Honey and Tar. The first dose I gave her relieved the inflammation in her throat and after using only one bottle her throat and lungs were entirely free from inflammation. Since then I always keep a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar in the house. Accept no substitutes. Haddon Pharmacy. A. R. McIntyre, Prop."
